with a foreword by slavoj Žižek this book explores the father function in the east in the process of modernisation arguing that modernisation and westernisation are euphemisms for the advent of capitalism in asiatic and african societies which lead to fatal transformations of the cultural and political incarnations of the oriental father a historical narrative of how israeli expertise in arab affairs has contributed to the creation of cultural separatism between jews and arabs a separatism that exacerbates the conflict between the two peoples the author draws upon the methodologies of theater and cultural studies to examine the construction of the orient on the parisian stage during the nineteenth century the period of france s first imperial expansions into north africa and the middle east as an increasingly large segment of the french population moved into contact with the middle east and north africa as soldiers colonial administrators settlers and merchants the balance between fantasy and immediacy in orientalized drama shifted the domestic melodrama gave way to elaborately staged military spectacles based on current events performed before working class audiences many of whose members were to be called up for military service these spectacles bore explicit political and imperial agendas mining rich archival resources of play texts censorship reports critical reviews and contemporary writings on performance practice this book reveals the complex processes by which the institutions of popular culture helped shape nineteenth century notions of race ethnicity and nationality

a study of romance and the orient in chaucer and in anonymous popular metrical romances the idea of the orient is a major motif in chaucer and medieval romance and this new study reveals much about its use and significance setting the literature in its historical context and thereby offering fresh new readings of a number of texts the author begins by looking at chaucer's and gower's treatment of the legend of constance as told by the man of law demonstrating that chaucer's addition of a pattern of mercantile details highlights the commercial context of the eastern mediterranean in which the heroine is placed she goes on to show how chaucer's portraits of cleopatra and dido from the legend of good women read against parallel texts especially in boccaccio reveal them to be loci of medieval orientalism she then examines chaucer's inventive handling of details taken from eastern sources and analogues in the squire's tale showing how he shapes them into the western form of interlace the author concludes by looking at two romances floriz and blaunche flour and le bone florence of rome she argues that elements in floriz of sibling incest are legitimised into a quest for the beloved and demonstrates that le bone florence be related to analogous oriental tales about heroic women who remain steadfast in virtue against persecution and adversity professor carol f heffernan teaches in the department of english rutgers university
